HISTORY OF HEMP

Hemp is among the oldest industries on the planet, going back more than 10,000 years to the beginnings of pottery.

Americans were legally bound to grow hemp during the Colonial Era and Early Republic. The first American Flag was made from hemp.

In 1937, Congress passed the Marijuana Tax Act which effectively began the era of hemp prohibition.

In 2014, The Farm Bill allowed hemp in certain states for research. Kentucky was a key player initiating the hemp movement in the United States.

In 2018, the Farm Bill was signed which specified hemp (and its constituents such as CBD) as an industrial byproduct, not to be regulated or criminalized by the DEA.

MARIJUANA VS HEMP

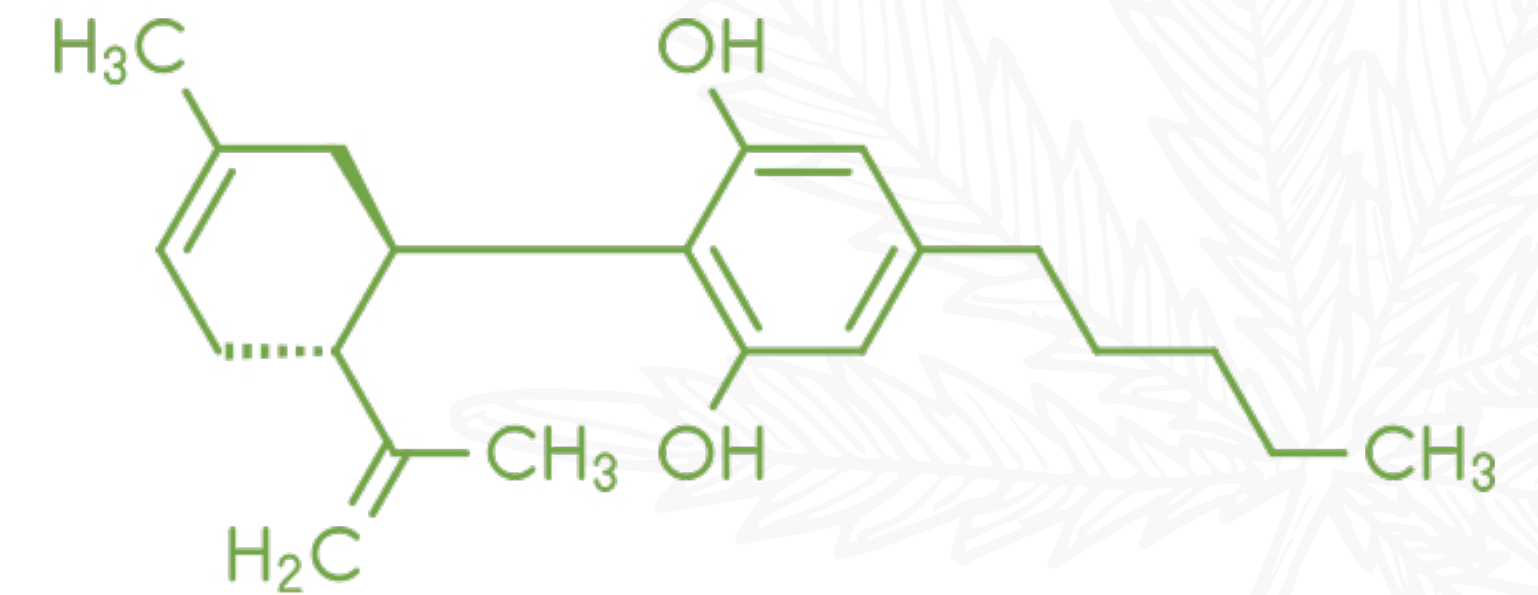

Cannabis is a family of plant with two primary classifications - Indica and Sativa. While marijuana can be considered a member of either the Indica or Sativa families, Hemp is a member of the Cannabis Sativa family.

Because Hemp and Marijuana both derive from the Cannabis Sativa family, they do share certain similarities. However, due to each plant's biological structure, they have several very distinct and crucial differences.

THC

CBD

Cannabis contains a variety of different compounds called Cannabinoids. Two of the most dominant are Tetrahydrocannabinol (THC) and Cannabidiol (CBD).

Both Cannabinoids have shown to provide profound benefits to the human body. While THC induces psychoactive effects (gets the user "high"), CBD does not contain any psychoactive properties.

THE ENDOCANNABINOID SYSTEM

“The significance of CBD wasn’t fully realized until a new system of the body called the Endocannabinoid System (ECS) was discovered in 1988.”

“The cell’s surface is covered with receptors. These are receptors for CBD. CBD binds to those receptors and send messages to the cell’s nucleus, where the intelligence of our entire physiology is contained within our chromosomes.”

“Endocannabinoid receptors are located in both the central nervous system, combined with the brain’s nerve cells [to] help regulate the body’s biochemistry. CB2 receptors in the peripheral nervous system are largely found in white blood cells in the tonsils and the spleen. We have these receptors because our bodies are constantly making its own cannabinoids. Cannabinoids that bind these sites help modulate the immune system response to disease and injury.”

“Therefore, if these were cells in your pancreas, which make insulin, for example, that insulin-making phenomenon is happening in millions of pancreatic cells, all producing insulin to keep your blood sugar in proper balance.”

“That’s how it works using the mobile module. In the human body, your philology interacts with CBD through the endocannabinoid System (ECS), the body’s largest, self-regulatory system. Our ECS is always in action, and if functioning properly, is a major factor in keeping us healthy.”

HempWorx products are designed to harness the natural power of hemp in order to provide effective solutions for your everyday life.

What Exactly Is Cannabidiol (CBD)?

CBD is a naturally occurring chemical that grows in hemp plants. It's just one of 100+ beneficial cannabinoids found in hemp. Our oil is CO₂ extracted resulting in a solvent free, pure extract.

What Is Full Spectrum CBD Oil?

Full Spectrum CBD contains all of the beneficial compounds that are naturally found in hemp, including terpenes, flavonoids, fatty acids, and cannabinoids like THC. All Full Spectrum HempWorx products are certified to contain less than 0.3% THC, which delivers the right benefits without any psychoactive effect.

What Is Broad Spectrum CBD Oil?

Broad Spectrum CBD also contains a variety of beneficial cannabinoids and terpenes, but with zero THC. It requires careful processing to purify the oil, and every batch of HempWorx CBD is tested to certify the potency. For those who don't want to consume THC for any reason, Broad Spectrum CBD is a great choice.

The background is a light cream color with a subtle pattern of large, faint cannabis leaves. In the corners, there are clusters of vibrant green cannabis leaves and several small, brown, oval-shaped seeds. A thin, dark grey rectangular border frames the entire composition.
